In his first book, Good Works, Not Good Times: A Successful Guide to Celebrity Philanthropy, non-profit veteran Shawn H. Wilson draws from his experience working with dozens of celebrity clients including Grammy award-winning musician Usher Raymond IV and NFL Pro-Bowler Allen Rossum to create a simple, straightforward collection of best practices for anyone interested in starting his or her own successful non-profit organization. The first-ever "how to" manual of its kind, Wilson's book outlines specific steps on everything from how to build a strategic plan and choose the right board members to the five steps every successful philanthropist should know before getting started.
