Katherine G. Aiken : Harnessing the Power of Motherhood: The National Florence Crittenton Mission, 1883-1925 before purchasing it in order to gage whether or not it would be worth my time, and all praised Harnessing the Power of Motherhood: The National Florence Crittenton Mission, 1883-1925:

The National Florence Crittenton Mission (N.F.C.M.), founded in 1883, pioneered rescue work to aid prostitutes, unmarried mothers, and their children through a large chain of institutional homes. In Harnessing the Power of Motherhood, Katherine G. Aiken explores the history of the N.F.C.M., painting a portrait of a politicized organization that became one of the most significant social welfare movements of its time. Aiken discusses the N.F.C.M.'s development, its programs and policies, and especially its influential leaders, Charles Nelson Crittenton and Dr. Kate Waller Barrett.
