(author) Peter Singer : How are We to Live?: Ethics in an Age of Self Interest (Paperback) - Common before purchasing it in order to gage whether or not it would be worth my time, and all praised How are We to Live?: Ethics in an Age of Self Interest (Paperback) - Common:

"Is there still anything worth living for? Is anything worth pursuing, apart from money, love, and caring for one's own family?" Internationally known social philosopher and ethicist Peter Singer has an answer to these and other questions in this compelling new volume. "If we can detach ourselves from our own immediate preoccupations and look at the world as a whole and our place in it, there is s...
